

Man 1:

Definitely not. All is great, thank God

Woman 1:

Yes!

Man 2:

Maybe!

Man 3:

It is not possible, I should always thank God

Man 1:

No, don't give a chance to yourself to be depressed. Fill your life up with happiness.

Woman 1:

It differs from time to time. I cannot- no, I am fed up. I should stop!

Man 2:

Of course not.

Man 4:

Of course not, unless an expert, um, I won't seek help.

Woman 1:

No, I always help myself and take good care of myself.

Man 2:

Of course not. It could be, but a very close person.

Woman 2:

As a way to get it off my chest, it is okay!
but going to a therapist, is not common.

Man 1:

It is my first time hearing about eating disorders indeed.

The man next to Man 1:

It is our first time hearing about it.

Woman 1:

No, I didn't hear about them honestly, however, I know some people who don't eat when they are depressed, and others who eat too much.

Woman 3:

in our society, it is considered a shame for some people, however, it was never a shame for me personally.

Woman 2:

No, it is not a shame.

Hanoush:

What about your society?

Woman 2:

Yes, it could be a shame in our society.

Man 1:

Probably 65%

Woman 1:

Not really!

Hanoush:

Rate it in percentile.

Woman 1:

Probably 75%

Man 4:

Not really, but it does exist of course.

Man 2:

No!

Hanoush:

What is the percentage?

Man 2:

50% or less. I saw many cases, but I am not talking about them.

Man 3:

No, no. especially this upcoming generation. They are so oppressed.

Woman 4:

Maybe 40 to 50%

Woman 3:

Lately, many platforms began to spread awareness, but before that didn't exist.

Woman 2:

No, Mental health is a non-existent term here in Egypt.